Reaktr.ai Launches AI-Powered SecAi Service on Oracle Cloud Infrastructure

Nov 11, 2024

IRVING, Texas, Nov. 11, 2024 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Reaktr, the global business unit of Exela Technologies, Inc. ("Exela" or the "Company") (NASDAQ: XELA, XELAP), XBP Europe ("XBP") (NASDAQ: XBP, XBPEW), and a member of the Oracle Partner Network (OPN), today announced the availability of SecAi on Oracle Cloud Infrastructure (OCI) and in the Oracle Cloud Marketplace.

A pivotal component of Reaktr's innovative AI cybersecurity suite, SecAi provides enterprises with a fully configurable generative AI validation framework that supports 120+ large language models (LLMs). Enterprises can now validate components, including training data, LLMs of choice, enterprise integrations, and responsible interactions, helping align with OWASP, the latest CVEs, MITRE Framework, and local government regulations.

"We're excited to collaborate with Oracle to deliver our SecAi service, which will help enterprises across the globe secure GenAI implementations, making them less vulnerable to bad actors," said Vineet Chaku, President of Reaktr. "Our vision for SecAi will be significantly accelerated by leveraging OCI thanks to its security and global reach across industries."

SecAi integrates with more than 80+ external data sources, and with 100,000+ scenarios and MLOps integrations it helps ensure coverage and proactive threat detection. The solution underscores Reaktr's dedication to harnessing AI and cloud solutions to deliver global enterprises secure, scalable, and reliable services.

"OCI provides a robust and reliable infrastructure that surpasses industry standards, helping ensure the utmost protection for our cybersecurity solutions," said Sripathy Balaji, SVP of product and solutions, Reaktr. "With OCI's state-of-the-art GPU ecosystems, Reaktr can help secure the end customer's GenAI ecosystem. Sitting at the center of enterprise data on OCI, Reaktr can leverage pre-integrated data sources as well as cloud-hosted LLM/ ML-based solutions for enterprises. This will bring SecAi out of the box on OCI for one of the largest data-centric enterprise ecosystems."

"Reaktr understands the complexities of security challenges facing companies today," said David Hicks, group vice president, ISV business and marketing development, Oracle. "Leveraging OCI, SecAi can benefit customers and enterprises worldwide, helping ensure heightened protection and peace of mind in today's ever-evolving cyber threat landscape."
